Start Here: Your Blush Garden Rose Wedding Website

Thank you for choosing BKE Studio. Keep this guide and your private edit link.

1. Start your website

Start your Blush Garden Rose website

You do not need Canva or an app. Open the link in your browser. Enter your Etsy order number, email address and first names. Check Website address before tapping Create my website: you can choose the address here, but cannot change it later.

Your order number contains 8 to 12 digits. An order can start one website. If the page says your order is already used, return to your saved edit link or contact the shop on Etsy.

Your website starts as a private draft. If your order is waiting for confirmation, you can edit it; publishing waits until the shop confirms the order.

2. Save your private edit link

Tap Copy link and keep the link in a safe place, such as your notes app. Email it to myself opens your own email app so you can send the link to yourself. The platform does not send it automatically yet.

Anyone with the edit link can change your website. Share the public website address with guests; keep the edit link private. Tap Open my editor to continue.

3. Follow the three setup steps

1. Your names and date: add your names, wedding date, ceremony time and time zone. The full-name fields are optional.

2. Add a photo: choose a portrait for your invitation. You can add the remaining photos later.

3. Publish your website: preview it and read the publishing rules. Replace sample details before sharing it with guests.

The first publication sets the starting point for your name/date changes. After publication you have 3 name and date changes in total. Small spelling fixes and date adjustments of up to 7 days from the counted date are free; the panel tells you whether a change uses a right before you confirm it. Your other text, links and photos can still be edited.

Your site normally stays online until 12 months after your wedding date. The panel shows your exact online-until date; the maximum is 48 months from the first publication.

4. Edit your website

Use Home, Edit, Guests and Share to move around the panel. Home shows how much is ready and the next few things to complete.

Open Edit, then choose a page:

Page	What you can change
Us	First/full names, names as shown and initials
Day & place	Wedding date, time, time zone, venue, up to 10 schedule entries and After the wedding
Photos	Invitation portrait, three story photos and venue photo
Our Story	Story text, three captions and whether to show the story
Details	Host line, dress code, travel, registry, map and up to 12 questions and answers
RSVP	Reply-by date and up to 3 questions for accepting guests

Optional sections are controlled inside their own pages. Headings & labels lets you edit almost every design heading, button and form label. Keep within the length shown for each field. You can restore a design's default wording. Colors, fonts, painted decoration and the envelope animation stay with the design.

Changes save automatically to your draft. Saving and publishing are separate: guests see the last published version. When you see Unpublished changes, tap Review to see what will go live, then Publish changes. Review can include changes from several pages, so check the whole list before publishing.

If the panel reports you are offline or that changes are not saved, wait until the connection is restored before closing it. If it reports a conflict, reload the current version before continuing.

5. Add and crop photos

In Edit → Photos, choose a photo slot and tap Add photo. Move the photo, zoom with the slider or pinch, and tap Use this photo. Each slot uses the frame's crop shape. You can replace or remove it later.

Use a JPEG or PNG copy if your phone's photo cannot be opened. The file chooser accepts photos up to 30 MB; the editor prepares a smaller cropped copy for upload. Empty slots show the design's soft placeholder. Add your own photos before sharing if you do not want guests to see placeholders.

6. Preview, publish and share

On a phone, open Preview and check Envelope, Home, Story, Details and RSVP. Close returns to editing. On a wider screen the preview sits beside the editor.

Tap Publish for the first publication. Check any sample-content warnings and the online-until date. After editing a published site, use Review → Publish changes.

Open Share:

• Copy link copies your public website address.

• Download PNG or Download SVG saves the QR code. Scan it with your phone before printing.

• The private edit-link controls are inside their own expandable section.

• Take offline hides the public site while keeping your content.

Guests need no account. They open your public link and tap the envelope.

Optional guest password

In Share, expand the password section and turn on Password protect your website. Choose a password and confirm it; use Copy password to send it with your public invitation link. Password protection is off by default.

This is one shared guest password, not a separate login for each person. Turning it on or changing it takes effect immediately. Changing it asks guests to enter the new password again. Switching it off lets anyone with the public link enter.

7. Manage guest replies

Open Guests, not the RSVP editing page, to see responses. Edit → RSVP changes the form; Guests manages replies.

• See the number coming, not coming and the response total.

• Read meal choices, notes and other answers; expand a reply to see the people in that party.

• Search/filter replies and use Refresh to load new ones.

• Download list exports CSV for Excel, Numbers or Google Sheets. A party is shown as one row per person when names are provided.

• Add a reply received another way, correct a reply, or print your guest list.

• Check held replies before including them in your totals. Removing a reply permanently deletes it; check before confirming.

Replies close at the end of your reply-by date in your wedding time zone. When guests choose two or more people, they may add the other guests' names. Those names are optional.

8. After the wedding

Open Edit → Day & place → After the wedding. Thank-you mode offers:

• Automatic: shows the thank-you version from midnight after the wedding day in your wedding time zone.

• On now: shows it immediately after you publish.

• Off: keeps the invitation version.

Add a thank-you title/message and optional photo. Preview the result, then publish your changes. In thank-you mode the invitation's countdown, calendar and RSVP invitations disappear, and guest replies close. Your existing replies remain in Guests and can be downloaded. You can choose whether to keep The Day details.

Troubleshooting

Guests cannot see my edits. Check that changes are saved, then use Review and Publish changes.

I lost my edit link. Check your notes or the email you sent yourself. Contact BKE Studio on Etsy with your order number if it is missing. A replacement link invalidates the old one; do not post your private link publicly.

My order is waiting for confirmation. Continue editing your draft. Contact the shop on Etsy if you need help; you cannot publish until the order is confirmed.

My photo will not upload. Try a JPEG or PNG copy and check your connection.

Can I change the website address or use my own domain? The address cannot be changed after creation. Your own domain is not currently supported.

Can I use another language? You can change almost every heading/label and write your own text. Keep within the displayed limits and preview all pages; font coverage varies by alphabet. The design's colors, artwork and fonts do not change.

Help and privacy

Message BKE Studio on Etsy, or write to [SUPPORT EMAIL]. Support response time: [SUPPORT RESPONSE TIME].

Guests' replies are visible in your private panel, not on your public site. Privacy notice: https://davetiye-platform-five.vercel.app/privacy.

The design's sample names, dates, places and photos are fictional. Replace them before sharing.